Meet a descendant of a Revolutionary family and explore an artist's vision that transformed a stone quarry into an environmental masterpiece.

Garrison Future: Farewell to a Pub, and Maybe an Era

The Mandevilles: An Artistic Use of Primary Source Documents: Betsy Braun Lane

11:00 Manitoga, The Russell Wright Design Center

Manitoga, Dragon Rock and the Russel Wright Studio are listed on the National Register of Historic Places, and Manitoga is a featured site in the National Trust for Historic Preservation's Historic Artists' Home and Studios program. Wright acquired the 75-acre property, an abandoned stone quarry, in 1942 and designed Dragon Rock, the Studio and a vast woodland garden as a total environment over the course of 35 years. Tours begin with a 15-minute documentary about Russel Wright's life. Afterward, visitors follow the inner quarry pond trail around to his home and studio. The landscape features views of Dragon Rock, a field of mountain laurel, a moss room, a stone staircase up the hill, and a wood plank bridge over the waterfall. Please wear comfortable walking shoes and dress appropriately. Visitors need to be able to negotiate uneven ground.
